City inching closer to work stoppage

Ford administration is adamant that the union give up certain job-security provisions

Mayor Rob Ford's administration has moved closer to a February lockout or strike, asking a provincial mediator to declare a deadlock in contract talks with 6,000 unionized outside workers.

The city expects Ontario Labour Minister Linda Jeffrey to issue a report affirming the deadlock on Tuesday. A city lockout, or union strike, would become legal 17 days later, around Feb. 3.

Deputy Mayor Doug Holyday, chair of the city's labour relations committee, accused the Canadian Union of Public Employees Local 416 of being unwilling to negotiate. The administration's Thursday request for the "no-board" report is merely intended to apply pressure on Local 416, he said.

"The sole function of (a 'no-board' report) is to ensure they are one step closer to their lockout. If there is a labour disruption ... it will be solely at the feet of this administration."
CUPE LOCAL 416 PRESIDENT MARK FERGUSON

"It's not our intent to lock them out, I can tell you that. We want a negotiated settlement, and that's why we're doing these things," he told reporters.

Man shot by police, woman found dead in Oakville

Oakville isn't a town that sees a lot of violence. Not like Thursday.

Halton police had to deal with two deaths within the space of a couple of hours and in the same general area.

A man was shot and killed in a confrontation with police in a police station parking lot. Soon after, police were called to a nearby home regarding the suspicious death of a woman.

Police have not confirmed a link between the two incidents.

The unidentified man was shot dead during a confrontation outside the District 2 station south of Dundas Street and west of Trafalgar Road at about 11:35 a.m. Investigators say a man had been causing damage to a vehicle in the police parking lot. It's not clear if he was armed.

Soon after the confrontation began, shots rang out and the man was killed.

▶ Katherine Newman, 43, was found dead in her Oakville home.

About five metres from where the man's body lay was a silver Nissan that appeared to have struck a Halton police van. The Nissan had a smashed right front fender and the driver's door was open.

The Nissan at the scene of the shooting was leased by a Kyle Newman.

Police have identified the woman found dead as Katherine Newman, 43.

Family confirmed she was married to a Kyle Newman.

"It is disturbing," Sgt. Dave Cross told reporters at the police station. That incident is being investigated by the Special Investigations Unit, which deals with cases of sexual assault, serious injury or death involving police. No officer was injured. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Treatment ordered for accused in Ford threats

The man accused of threatening to kill Mayor Rob Ford appeared briefly in an Old City Hall courtroom Thursday and was returned to custody for at least two weeks.

Scott MacIntyre, longtime common-law partner of the mayor's sister, Kathy Ford, stood in court with his arms crossed and head bowed. The 45-year-old is charged with forcible entry, two counts of threatening death and possession of heroin and cocaine.

When ordered not to have contact with Ford or any members of his immediate family, he shook his head and mumbled "Fine by me."

An order for medical attention was issued after MacIntyre's lawyer, Sam Boutzouvis, told the court his client needed immediate attention. Outside court, Boutzouvis would not elaborate.

MacIntyre was arrested on Wednesday.

Police say a man allegedly threatened to kill Rob Ford and "any cop" who got in his way, according to court documents.

"You and your family are going to get it," he allegedly said to Ford.

A softer budget

Changes to proposed budget cuts will be paid for using about $8.8M in property-assessment growth

Mayor Rob Ford and his allies voted Thursday to reject or soften several of the most controversial proposed budget cuts.

The changes by Ford's executive committee do not fully address the criticisms of other councillors, some of whom said council would force further adjustments at its budget meeting next week. They do, however, significantly narrow the gap between the mayor and his opponents.

"We are close," said Coun. Shelley Carroll, a Ford critic and former budget chief.

The changes will be paid for using about $8.8 million in unanticipated property-assessment growth. The committee did not touch the $154 million operating surplus left at the end of 2011, which Ford argues should not be used to balance the operating budget.

Ford had strongly endorsed the budget in its previous form, though he had also said changes would be made.

On Thursday, he said all of the proposals had been made independently by committee members, none by him or his staff. But, with a dismissive "come on," he rejected a reporter's suggestion that he had "lost control" of his executive.

The committee voted to:

- Reject a $1.9 million cut to arts grants.
- Shrink the demand cut to the library system by $3.1 million.
- Spend $928,000 to preserve sidewalk snow-clearing in the suburbs.
- It also endorsed previous proposals to avoid cuts to student nutrition programs, two school pools and 12 community centres.

Screeners' union gives warning

A union that represents security screeners at Canadian airports warns that job cuts at Toronto's Pearson International Airport could seriously inconvenience travellers or risk public safety.

The United Steelworkers union said another round of cuts at the country's busiest airport will mean travelling delays and seriously compromise national security and passenger safety.

"Airport security screening suffered cutbacks and major disruptions from last year's reorganization," said Wayne Fraser, the steelworkers' Ontario and Atlantic director.

Earlier Thursday, another union, the Canadian Airport Workers, said 299 screeners are affected by the Pearson cuts, though the Montreal-based security company that employs them disputes the severity of the cuts.

It will use 10 articulated Viva buses on the busy 99 Yonge route, between Bernard and Finch station, to relieve crowding on the corridor, which is attracting riders from routes that aren't in operation because of the labour dispute.

The buses won't, however, operate Viva-style service, which allows rear-door loading and proof of payment. Passengers will board at the front.

Councillor can't tag this on Mercer

TV host defends rants in laneway after Mississauga councillor says its graffiti encourages vandalism

Rick Mercer is firing back at a Mississauga city councillor who says the comedian's famous rants along Toronto's Graffiti Alley have hampered the suburb's anti-graffiti efforts.

"My rants are shot in an artist-friendly laneway. These are fabulous, vibrant, constantly-changing works of art," Mercer wrote in an email to the Toronto Star. "I would wager many of those artists will be remembered long after the good councillor, who's (sic) name escapes me."

At a Mississauga city council meeting Wednesday, Councillor Katie Mahoney suggested the graffiti backdrop of Mercer's "Rant," a popular segment on his long-running CBC Television program, Rick Mercer Report, glorifies vandalism.

"Rick Mercer needs to know that he's not doing anybody any good with his rants down the graffiti-tagged alley," she said. "That's not helping the cause across the country."

In an interview with the Star on Thursday, Mahoney said she stands by her original remarks, but emphasized that they were "certainly no knock against Rick Mercer at all."

"My concern is that this showing of Graffiti Alley ... doesn't help in our efforts to combat illegal graffiti," she said.

- Mahoney added that she wasn't aware until after she made her comments that Graffiti Alley, located near Queen St. W., and Spadina Ave., is exempt from any graffiti bylaw and sanctioned as an area of "municipal significance" by Toronto city hall.
- For his part, Mercer said he doesn't condone vandalism or tagging.

'My mom meant the world to me': Daughter

She was remembered as a caring daughter, sister and friend, a pioneer of women's hockey in the Leaside community she loved, and a talented business woman who started her own interior design company.

But at a solemn funeral that drew 500 mourners Thursday, 45-year-old Lisa Lebitka was, above all, remembered as a devoted mother of three.

"My mom meant the world to me," said 10-year-old Paige Donaldson, dwarfed by the pulpit of St. Anselm Catholic Church as she delivered her mother's eulogy.

Lebitka's ex-husband, Mike Donaldson, and Paige's younger siblings Holly and Charley stood in support nearby, next to a covered casket adorned with a single pink rose.

"Whether it was 'Thanks for taking me to Disney World' or crying in her arms after a bad day at school, me and my mom couldn't have been closer," Paige said.

She would remember that "mommy smell," and expressed sadness over her mother missing her future.

"Everything has changed," she said.

Lebitka was found dead in her Leaside home on New Year's Day, after police arrived to investigate a missing-person report.

Mom furious after photos removed from Facebook

Site considers the breastfeeding photos a violation of its policy on nudity, according to B.C. mother Facebook page created in support of the mom

PETER MCCABE/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

▶ Emma Kwasnica, a breastfeeding advocate and founder of the online breast milk sharing network Human Milk 4 Human Babies, feeds her 23-month-old daughter, Chloe, as Sophie, left, and Anna watch TV last September.

A Vancouver woman is furious at Facebook after the company removed breastfeeding photos she posted on the social networking site.

Emma Kwasnica, 33, said since she joined Facebook in 2008, nearly 30 of her breastfeeding photos have been taken down and her account has been temporarily frozen in four separate incidents.

The latest incident occurred this past Saturday when she tried to log on, she said.

Kwasnica said Facebook removed her photos because of what it says is a violation of its policies on obscenity, nudity and sexually explicit content.

"This is a child's right to eat, a mother's right to nurse her child," Kwasnica said in a telephone interview from her Vancouver home.

"There's nothing sexually explicit in breastfeeding photos, nothing at all."

Kwasnica said she has sent emails to Facebook, but has yet to receive an apology or any kind of response.

She said it has left her feeling confused about Facebook's rules, pointing to a recent case in which Facebook issued a public apology to another woman in North Carolina who was in the same situation.

"So are American women allowed to post breastfeeding photos and Canadian women aren't?"
EMMA KWASNICA

Television station WCNC of Charlotte, N.C., reported on its website last month that Facebook apologized to Heather Stultz after it removed a breastfeeding photo she posted on her breastfeeding support page called Respect the Breast.

Just as in Kwasnica's case, WCNC reported that Stultz's photo was initially removed because it violated Facebook's rules on pornographic content.

Eventually, Facebook reversed its decision on the photo in question and apologized, saying the photo was removed "in error."

"So are American women allowed to post breastfeeding photos and Canadian women aren't?" Kwasnica said.

"It's very confusing. It's very vague. And the only acceptable policy at this point is to leave all breastfeeding images alone."

A Facebook page was set up earlier this week in support of Kwasnica that has already attracted about 3,500 supporters.

RCMP spied on Rae: Documents

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

The RCMP spied on Bob Rae during his student activist days and likely amassed a personal dossier on the future Liberal leader, newly declassified documents reveal.

Mountie security agents, wary of late-1960s campus turmoil, kept a close eye on the University of Toronto student council — apparently relying on a secret informant to glean information about Rae and other council members.

The RCMP Security Service conducted widespread surveillance of universities, unions, peace groups and a myriad of other organizations during the Cold War in an effort to identify left-wing subversives.

A surprised Rae says he had no idea the RCMP was watching him.

"The notion that any of this posed a kind of a threat to the established order certainly would have come as news to all of us," he said in an interview.

"The only thing sinister, frankly, in all of this is how much of it was being recorded and reported and presumably being put in a file somewhere."

Her lawyer Barbara MacFarlane says the lawsuit has been settled but could not disclose any of the details.

She says Johnston is glad the situation has been resolved and looks forward to moving on with her life.

MacFarlane says the case has prompted positive legislative changes and more awareness, which she hopes will lead to better public safety.

Johnston's lawsuit had named her surgeon, Dr. Barbara Heartwell, pathologist Dr. Olive Williams, Hotel-Dieu Grace Hospital in Windsor, where the surgery took place, and the Leamington District Memorial Hospital.

Feds criticized over same-sex divorce issue

PM says he won't reopen debate after doubt cast on gay marriages

The Harper government is being accused of taking away same-sex rights by "stealth" in light of a surprise government stand that thousands of the non-resident gay and lesbian couples who came to Canada to exchange vows aren't legally married after all.

"The narrow interpretation of the law shows that the Harper government is trying to take away same-sex rights by stealth, and Canadians need to know that the advances we thought were secure are now under threat from the Harper neo-conservatives," Interim Liberal Leader Bob Rae told the Toronto Star Thursday.

"I think it's the radical right by stealth."
BOB RAE, INTERIM LIBERAL LEADER

Thousands of same-sex marriages since 2004 involving couples from outside Canada are in limbo as a result of a new position taken by the Conservative government.

In a nutshell, government lawyers are arguing in court that if same-sex couples could not be legally married in their home country, then their Canadian wedding is not valid.

Outspoken American author and journalist Dan Savage told his husband Thursday morning their marriage was no longer valid.

The couple was reacting to news reports according to which the Conservative government argued non-resident same-sex couples who married in Canada are not legally wed if same-sex marriages are unlawful in their home jurisdictions.

"We're not crawled up in the fetal position on the floor, we're getting up and we're going to fight," he said. "But we're pissed."

Savage said that the controversy has left marriages like his in "legal limbo."

"In Washington state, my husband and I are domestic partners because we're married in Canada," said Savage, who married Miller in Vancouver in 2005. "So if we're not married in Canada, we're not domestic partners here."

Savage said the news was "personally distressing" and "a big step backwards for Canada."

He and his husband will continue to fight to ensure the issue is debated until equality is granted to all same-sex couples.

Iranian newspaper calls for retaliation

Asks why Iran did not avenge the chemistry expert, killed in Wednesday's bombing, by striking Israel

ATTA KENARE/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Ayatollah Ali Khamenei

A hard-line Iranian newspaper on Thursday called for retaliation against Israel, a day after the mysterious killing of a nuclear scientist in Tehran with a magnetic bomb attached to his car. Iran's top leader blamed Israel and the U.S.

Provocative hints from Israel reinforced the perception that the killing was part of an organized and clandestine campaign to set back Iran's nuclear ambitions, which the U.S. and its allies suspect are aimed at producing weapons. Iran says the program is for peaceful purposes only.

Iran's nuclear confrontation with the West had already been escalating in the weeks before the killing, with the U.S. tightening sanctions against Tehran, and Iranian officials warning that they would shut a waterway vital to global oil shipping in response.

The Wednesday assassination of Mostafa Ahmadi Roshan — at least the fourth targeted hit against a member of Iran's nuclear brain trust in two years — has heightened tensions even further.

Iran's Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei blamed both Israel and the U.S. In a message read on Iranian state TV, he said the killing was carried out "with design or co-ordination of the CIA and the Mossad," Israel's spy agency. He pledged that Iran would punish those responsible.

Tehran quickly blamed Israeli-linked agents backed by the U.S. and Britain. Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton denied any U.S. role in the slaying. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Judge declares Natalee Holloway dead, 6 years later

An Alabama judge signed an order Thursday declaring Natalee Holloway dead, more than six years after the American teenager vanished on the Caribbean island of Aruba during a high school graduation trip.

Judge Alan King signed the order at the close of a hearing in a Birmingham courtroom that was attended by the missing woman's divorced parents, Dave and Beth Holloway.

Dave Holloway told the judge in September he believed his daughter had died and he wanted to stop payments on her medical insurance and use her $2,000 college fund to help her younger brother.

Thursday's hearing was scheduled long before a suspect questioned in Holloway's disappearance, Dutchman Joran van der Sloot, pleaded guilty Wednesday in Peru to the 2010 murder of a woman in Lima.

Natalee Holloway disappeared in Aruba on May 30, 2005.

The 18-year-old was last seen leaving a bar early that morning with van der Sloot.

Her body was never found and the ensuing searches for the young woman garnered intense media scrutiny and worldwide attention.

King acted on a petition by the father to have the missing 18-year-old declared dead.

The teen's mother originally objected, but her lawyer, Charlie DeBardeleben, said she subsequently changed her mind once she understood her husband's intentions.

Natalee Holloway's parents were divorced in 1993 and Beth Holloway sat in the back row of the courtroom, mostly staring at her hands in her lap during the hearing Thursday afternoon.

She declined comment, but her attorney signalled it was a tough moment for her to see a judge sign an order declaring her daughter dead.

"She's ready to move on from this," DeBardeleben added. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A homicide

- Authorities have long worked from the assumption that the young woman was dead in Aruba, where the case was officially classified as a homicide investigation.

Here is the groundbreaking natural mulberry tablet – to end your sugar addictions!

Anne's story: "I love sodas, chips, candy and chocolate. Admittedly, I let sugar control my eating habits. Whenever I was tired, I would grab some sweets from my bag, and in the evenings, I would get tempted by chocolate and ice cream. I felt like a sugar junkie and I was growing out of my clothes."

I lacked willpower

"I stopped by my health food store one day to get some help. The storeowner was not surprised about my problems with sugar. He explained that when we eat simple sugars, our blood sugar can fluctuate too much and that can create more hunger and the accommodating weight gain.

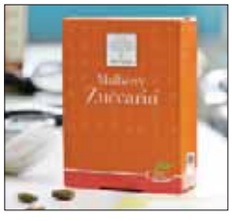
He suggested that I try a 3-week "sugar detox" using a new supplement called Mulberry Zuccarin. "It will help stabilize your blood sugars naturally by cutting the amount of calories you uptake", he explained, "and stable blood sugar helps you control your sugar cravings."

Cheating the sugar – with Mulberry Zuccarin

"I followed the storeowner's advice and took one tablet with each meal that contained carbohydrates. The mulberry extract would block the calories in the carbohydrates from being fully digested. In other words, I could "cheat" with Zuccarin. So I could eat carbohydrates and not have to worry so much about my weight. I liked that idea!"

Suddenly, I felt it work

"As the days went by, and I kept taking my Zuccarin tablets, I noticed that the health store owner was right. I thought less about sugar now! By the end of the second week, my energy had increased and I started to feel great. I had actually changed my eating habits with Mulberry Zuccarin, and as a bonus, I started to fit into my old clothes again. Hurrah!"



Mulberry Zuccarin is Scandinavia's leading carb blocker.

Cut methane, soot to slow global warming: Scientists

Measures would pay off with benefits to health, agriculture and climate worth 10 times the cost of implementing them, researchers say

An international team of scientists says it has figured out how to slow global warming in the short run and prevent millions of deaths from dirty air: Stop focusing so much on carbon dioxide.

The key, they say, is to reduce emissions of two powerful and fast-acting causes of global warming — methane and soot.

Carbon dioxide is the chief greenhouse gas and the one that world leaders have spent the most time talking about controlling. Scientists say carbon dioxide from coal and oil is a bigger overall cause of global warming, but reducing methane and soot offers a quicker fix.

Soot also is a big health problem, so dramatically cutting it with existing technology would save up to 4.7 million lives a year, according to the research published online Thursday in the journal Science.

Two dozen scientists ran computer models of 400 existing pollution-control measures and came up with 14 methods that attack methane and soot.

All 14 methods — capturing methane from landfills and coal mines, cleaning up cook stoves and diesel engines and changing agriculture techniques for rice paddies and manure collection — are being used efficiently in many places, but are not universally adopted, said the study's lead author, Drew Shindell of NASA.

If adopted more widely, the scientists calculate that would reduce projected global warming by 0.5 degrees Celsius by the year 2050. It also would increase annual yield of key crops worldwide by almost 135 million metric tons.

And shifting the pollution focus does not mean ignoring carbon dioxide. Shindell said: "The science says you really have to start on carbon dioxide even now to get the benefit in the distant future." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Reduce soot print

- Methane comes from landfills, farms, drilling for natural gas and coal mining.
- Soot, called black carbon by scientists, is a byproduct of burning and is a big problem with cook stoves using wood, dung and coal in developing countries and in some diesel fuels.
- Reducing methane and black carbon isn't the best way to attack climate change, air pollution or hunger, but reducing those chemicals works simultaneously on all three problems, says Drew Shindell of NASA.

News in brief

Campaign of Putin panned

MOSCOW. Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin launched the website for his presidential campaign Thursday, only to see it flooded with comments from detractors demanding he not run.

The negative responses, which were followed by a freezing of the site that saw many of those critical comments vanish, illustrated the growing sense of discontent with Putin, whose centralized, top-down rule already has faced historic street protests in recent weeks.

British spies face probe

LONDON. Britain's spy agencies will face a criminal inquiry into claims that intelligence shared with Moammar Gadhafi's regime led to the torture or rendition of two Libyan men and their families, authorities announced Thursday.

An investigation was launched in 2008 when a former Guantanamo Bay detainee alleged that intelligence agencies were complicit in his torture. The inquiry later expanded to include claims by two Libyans who accused intelligence agents of sharing sensitive information with Gadhafi's regime.

Keep eyes on the skies

Russian probe ready to fall to Earth It's 14 tonnes of toxic space junk

A Russian spacecraft designed to burnish the nation's faded space glory in a mission to one of Mars' moons has turned into one of the heaviest, most toxic pieces of space junk ever.

It will come crashing down to Earth in just a few days.

The Russian space agency Roscosmos' latest forecast has the unmanned Phobos-Ground probe falling out of Earth's orbit Sunday or Monday, with the median time placing it over the Indian Ocean just north of Madagascar. It said the precise time and place of its uncontrolled plunge can only be determined later, and unless someone actually spots fiery streaks in the sky, no one may ever know where any surviving pieces end up.

Phobos facts

- The $170-million US Phobos-Ground mission was Russia's most expensive and the most ambitious space endeavour since Soviet times. The spacecraft was intended to land on the crater-dented, potato-shaped Martian moon, collect soil samples and fly them back to Earth, giving scientists precious materials that could shed more light on the genesis of the solar system.
- The probe was successfully launched Nov. 9., but Russia's space chief says the mission was ill-prepared.

Dogs saved from being canine cuisine

Thai authorities say they have rescued more than 750 dogs destined for cooking pots in Vietnam.

Capt. Thirakiat Thongaram says a Thai navy patrol caught a gang of dog smugglers Thursday morning on the shore of the Mekong River in Nakhon Phanom province.

He says the canines were to be transported through Laos to Vietnam, where dog meat is a delicacy. They will instead be sent to a shelter in Nakhon Phanom.

U.S. slams marines in 'golden shower' video

Officials investigating video of men urinating on corpses

A video depicting four U.S. Marines supposedly urinating on the corpses of Afghans has been condemned as "utterly deplorable" and "disrespectful."

It is "absolutely inconsistent with American values, with the standards of behaviour ... that the vast majority of marines hold themselves to," U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton said Thursday.

Clinton expressed "total dismay" over the video, which shows men dressed in combat gear standing over three bodies. It is unclear how the three died or whether they were Taliban or civilians.

"Anyone found to have participated or to have known about it ... must be held fully accountable."

A caption beneath the video, which was posted on YouTube, identifies the men as part of a scout sniper team assigned to 3rd Battalion, 2nd Marines, out of Camp Lejeune, N.C. One man in the video says, "Golden like a shower." Another begins to say, "The whole thing," before it ends. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Man found guilty of public nudity

Naturist charged after going through drive-thrus naked Claimed nudity was a legal form of expression

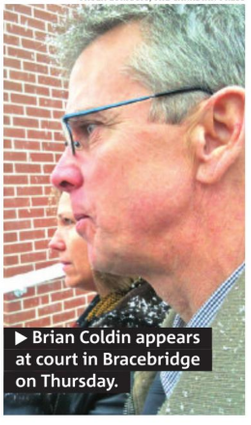
An Ontario court upheld Canada's public nudity law Thursday, saying it doesn't infringe on freedom of expression or the right to practise naturism.

While nudism could be considered a protected form of expression under certain circumstances, "requiring people to wear some modicum of clothing when in public is a reasonable limit," Justice Jon-Jo A. Douglas told the court in delivering his judgment.

The court ruling comes after a constitutional challenge by a man charged in incidents involving public nudity in the Bracebridge area.

Brian Coldin was found guilty of partial nudity that offended public order for incidents at a park and two fast-food drive-thrus.

PAOLA LORIGGIO/THE CANADIAN PRESS



▶ Brian Coldin appears at court in Bracebridge on Thursday.

He was found not guilty in another incident that started on his own property, a clothing-optional resort he operates in the Bracebridge area north of Toronto.

At Coldin's trial, A&W and Tim Hortons workers testified he was nude when he came to the drive-thru windows and one worker said he pretended to reach for a wallet as if wearing pants.

Outside court Thursday, Coldin said he wasn't nude during that incident, but was wearing a towel.

In his ruling, Douglas found Coldin's actions expressed "not much more than his desire to be publicly nude."

Internet race is on for .toronto address

- Personalized brand comes at a price tag of $185,000
- Critics say fraud to increase with more fake sites

Competition is coming to an Internet browser near you.

The turf war for new web addresses such as .car, .toronto, or .apple has begun as ICANN (Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers), the body that regulates the Internet, opened up the registration for new top-level domains on Thursday.

ICANN expects between 500 and 1,000 organizations to apply for a personalized brand. The introduction will shake up the domain name business model and "change the Internet forever," according to ICANN.

Applications are open for three months, but new names won't be decided upon for at least a year. If two organizations vie for the same space, an auction will determine the highest bidder. There are currently 274 endings to website addresses, 252 of which are country specific such as .ca or .fr. The other 22 include the popular .com, the racy .xxx and charity-friendly .org.

Letting people create new endings will boost competition, change the way people and browsers search through information, and revamp how people and organizations brand themselves online.

Most Canadians choose between .com and .ca, explained David Fowler from the Canadian Internet Registration Authority (CIRA).

"Canadians have got a pretty simple menu today," Fowler said, adding that hosting a .ca site on CIRA costs about $20 a year. "In the future, that could get a little bit confusing."

FOUR MARINES WHO MISSED THE POTTY-TRAINING SEMINAR

THE METRO LIST

PAUL SULLIVAN
METRO

It's going to be a jam-packed year, as we have to get it all in before the world ends on Dec. 21.

So let's get started with this week's Metro List, the authoritative compendium of what's goin' on:

1 PR nightmare: Four U.S. marines are caught urinating on dead Taliban with extreme prejudice. Once again, the smartphone proves its worth as a weapon of mass embarrassment.

2 Awwww: Vancouver Aquarium's sea otter Milo, the world's cutest animal, succumbs to cancer at 12. A YouTube video of Milo and Nyac — also a sea otter — holding paws and floating on their backs, has racked up 17 million views. Nyac was the older woman; she died last year at 20. Who says otters are slippery? Milo was staunch.

3 Dining alfresco: Breast-feeding pix nixed on Facebook as sexually explicit, which leads us to wonder just how kinky they are at the world's foremost social network. Meanwhile, that "naturist" guy who kept going through the drive-thru at Timmy Ho's starkers had his sentence upheld. What's the big deal? They're both cases of little boys having dinner.

4 World's most dangerous job: Iranian nuclear scientist No. 4 gets blown up this week. The Israelis: Who, Us? If this keeps up, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad will have to make his own damn atomic bombs.

5 Katy Perry: 5; Russell Brand: 0: She's hot enough to melt your popsicle, winning five People's Choice Awards. Ex-hubby Russell Brand? He loses the California Gurl. And the consolation prize of being referred to as the star of Arthur is no consolation at all.

6 Good news, bad news: In the same week, Toronto Maple Leafs defenceman Dion Phaneuf gets voted to the all-star squad and is rated the NHL's most overrated player. Somebody's wrong.

7 HBD: Kate Middleton, er, the Duchess of Somewhere, turns 30. You think that's something? Betty White turns 90 this week, and she's still funny. Kate Middleton has never — to our knowledge — been funny. Although she does smile a lot.

8 Show us the file: The RCMP spied on Bob Rae when he was on the University of Toronto student council. Now that he's Liberal leader, they don't care … as he's a threat to no one.

9 Bieber watch: He's going back into the studio to work on his next album. Will his voice crack before he's finished?

Dutch storms create wave of orphaned seal pups

A volunteer feeds a seal a herring at the Pieterburen seal creche, north of the town of Groningen, in northern Netherlands on Thursday.

Storms that have lashed the Dutch coast this year have created a wave of orphaned baby seals, some so young their umbilical cords are still attached, wrenched from their mothers and washed up on beaches and dikes. An existing Pieterburen seal rehabilitation and research center (SRRC) near the northern city of Groningen has been so inundated with pups and older seals in recent weeks it has erected a temporary tent to house them while they are nurtured back to health before being returned to the wild.

'Screamers'

- American volunteer Torrey Utne said Thursday that in the last 10 days, more than 100 seals have been brought to the centre for treatment and it now houses some 350 of the marine mammals.
- Many of them are young pups known as "screamers" for their high-pitched whining.

"Some of the seals are really friendly.... They will come right up to you and sniff you because they know you are the one bringing fish."

Synopsis

- In the New Orleans-set crime thriller Contraband, Mark Wahlberg plays Chris Farraday, a reformed criminal forced to do the proverbial one last job when his brother-in-law Andy (Caleb Landry Jones) runs afoul of a local gangster (Giovanni Ribisi). To square the deal and pay-off Andy's debt, Chris agrees to go back into his old line of work — smuggling. In this case he must illegally transport millions of dollars in counterfeit bills. But can he navigate around the police, ruthless drug lords and double crosses to keep Andy and his family safe?

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE & MARK BRESLIN

Old plot, new twist

The 'one last heist' genre gets the grit of Mark Wahlberg in Contraband

Richard: Mark, Maybe January isn't a dumping ground for awful movies anymore. Used to be that only the dregs came out after Christmas, but Contraband is actually a pretty good thriller. It's not brilliant, but succeeds mainly because Wahlberg can play the family man, as he does in the first part of the movie, and then switch gears to have believable tough-guy swagger.

Mark: Well, the plot — One! Last! Heist! is as old as Dick Clark's toupee. But the movie is all in the details — the gritty port milieu, the dirty hold of the cargo boat, the cheap 'n'sleazy Panamanian dives; this flick is the antidote to Miami Vice — there's zero glamour in this smuggling game. As far as Wahlberg goes, I found him totally believable and it's the best thing he's done in a while. But what's up with Ben Foster? Does he have to be a creep in every movie he's in?

RC: Foster is a fine but typecast actor. He really needs to break away from the deadbeat kind of characters he's been playing lately. More work like his heartrending performance in The Messenger please, and less like paint-by-number creepy guys he plays in movies like this and The Mechanic.

MB: And I was all excited to see Kate Beckinsale out of Vampirella drag — and then they gave her nothing to do; the worst wifey part in recent memory. The other supporting roles weren't all that great, either, although Giovanni Ribisi does make a swell bad guy, and I'll always have a soft spot for JK Simmons after his role in Oz. I like seeing him in anything.

RC: With the way Ribisi chews the scenery here and his work in The Rum Diary he's proving himself to be the hungriest actor in Hollywood next to Nic Cage. He was fun. Beckinsale, not so much. Why cast her and then simply make her the damsel in distress? You'd think after kicking werewolf butt in four Underworld movies she'd be able to defend herself by now. Unfortunately the supporting characters are less interesting than the movie as a whole.

MB: It's not really an 'actor's movie,' is it? But the mechanics of the heist work, as well as the action sequences, and that's why it's worth watching. Oh, and a fabulous art joke, which seems out of whack with the rest of the film, but is a hoot nevertheless.

A beastly outing

Chris Alexander takes his sons to Beauty and the Beast 3D The boys bond over chick-flick bashing

CHRIS ALEXANDER
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

A few months ago, Metro revisited Disney's iconic animated masterpiece The Lion King, whose original 2D visual pallet had been converted and re-released as 3D entertainment. This writer was charged with taking his budding movie buff four and a half-year-old son Jack to see the movie, a father/son rite of passage and also an alarming reminder at how times have changed. Because no matter how spectacular The Lion King remains, its level of emotional intensity and violent confrontation is something that, well, kids today in this more nervous pop cult landscape just aren't as familiar with.

Today, the house the mouse built digs up another masterwork, again in 3D: 1992's sumptuous, Oscar-nominated Beauty and the Beast. For this round, I opted to not only bring the sophisticated of taste Jack with me to critique, but also another member of my film-reared brood, three-year-old Elliot, a young man who adores motion pictures ... but abhors wearing 3D glasses.

Now that's as good a place to start as any.

Beauty is just that, a ravishing classic fairy tale, with every single hand drawn frame a work of warm art. So why then, cut up those delicate frames into 3D? The answer is, of course, to compete in today's screen leaping obsessed marketplace. Fair enough, but while The Lion King's conversion — with its bright, sun burnt vistas — benefited from that dimensional goose, Beauty is a much darker affair and much of the gimmick is ineffective. And in Elliot's case, annoying, as the lad kept removing his specs, refusing my many attempts to put them back on.

No matter. He still was gripped by the picture. Both boys were. It's tight, colourful, lively, operatic and brisk, with not a shred of flab upon its meticulously designed body. And while it's still a rather intense, frightening affair (compared to say, Arthur Christmas) it lacks the relentless flesh eating and traumatic patricide of The Lion King. Instead, every gothic shock, howling wolf and the screaming beast is instantly reeled back in with singing teapots, spunky heroines and comic relief. And although the new 3D sheen lacks the punch it promises, it's still exciting to see Beauty and the Beast return to screens so that parents raised on its romantic, passionate charms can share it with their kids.

It also for me, marks a milestone in Jack's cinematic pallet in the form of his newly minted disdain for chick flicks.

"I loved that movie," he remarked as the credits rolled.

"But I hate girls in dresses that kiss."

There you have it.

▶ Martial Arts star Gina Carano gets to kick Michael Fassbender's butt in Haywire, which opens next Friday.

Beat up by a girl

Channing Tatum meets his match in martial arts expert Gina Carano ◐ They square off in Haywire

SASHA PERL-RAVER
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN HOLLYWOOD

Channing Tatum knows how to pick a fight. Last year, he quite vocally went on the record admitting he wasn't interested in watching or starring opposite a female action hero until Hollywood unearthed a woman who was truly intimidating.

"I've always wanted someone that I would be afraid to fight. And they found one," he grins, sitting in a suite at the Four Seasons in Beverly Hills where he's promoting his latest film, Haywire, a Bourne-esque action thriller about a covert operative caught in a deadly double cross that's headlined by female mixed martial arts star Gina Carano. "Isn't she just the most amazing little thing ever?" Tatum gushes. "I mean, she's diesel, but she's just got the best heart and she's so good in this movie."

Carano, best known for her fight appearances and role as Crush on American Gladiators, was approached by Haywire director Steven Soderbergh to do an action movie, though he did caution her it would be "interesting" to see who signed opposite on for roles that demanded grown men get their butts kicked by a girl … who also happens to be a trained Muay Thai fighter.

"She's a real fighter, she can beat up most dudes," Tatum chuckles.

Her other co-stars are equally enthusiastic: "Oh, I got my butt kicked sideways by her and I loved every minute of it," Ewan McGregor offers. "It never crossed my mind for a minute not to do the movie for some macho reason."

Carano, who describes herself as "a tomboy who also loved Pride and Prejudice," says she feels incredibly lucky to have been given the chance to do any movie, let alone the lead in a Soderbergh project.

"I don't consider myself what people are necessarily looking for," she says, surprisingly sheepish for someone who knows her way around a submission choke-out.

"So I knew if I was going to get this opportunity, it was going to have to come to me. And it did."

Sculpting her acting chops

▶ Gina Carano recalls her first day of work, which had her going toe-to-toe with one of 2011's breakout stars, Michael Fassbender. "At that point, I had only read lines with an acting coach for maybe three days," she cringes. "I showed up and Michael said, 'You want to run lines?' And I said, 'Please.' It was the first time I'd run lines with an actor. He put some whiskey down in front of me and said, 'OK, let's do this.'"

Movie reviews

The Iron Lady
Genre: Drama
Director: Phyllida Lloyd
Stars: Meryl Streep, Jim Broadbent, Richard E. Grant
●●●

The film begins in the present with Margaret Thatcher, the longest serving British Prime Minister of the 20th Century, diminished by age. She daydreams conversations with her late husband and reflects on the past, which leads us into the "greatest hits" biographical format that makes up most of the movie.

It's all rather standard, elevated by a performance that once again displays what a great technician Meryl Streep is. She embodies Thatcher, from the flamboyant hair to the ever-present pearls although the real heavy lifting is done in the "lion in winter" scenes. It's there the movie goes beyond the showy impersonation and becomes an emotional, well rounded portrait.

A Dangerous Method
Genre: Drama
Director: David Cronenberg
Stars: Michael Fassbender, Keira Knightley, Viggo Mortensen
●●●½

Director David Cronenberg has rarely been this simply elegant. The story of two pioneering figures of psychoanalysis, Carl Jung (Michael Fassbender) and Sigmund Freud (Viggo Mortensen), who have a falling out over an intelligent but troubled patient, Sabina Spielrein (Keira Knightley), is sophisticated and stylish. Shot compositions and camerawork are kept simple so as not to distract from the star of the show — the dialogue. As you might imagine for a drama about therapists, there is a great deal of talk. A Dangerous Method won't be for everyone. The combo of love story and birth of modern analysis is an odd mix, but in its introspection is a fascinating glimpse into the character's lives and minds.

Joyful Noise
Genre: Comedy/Musical
Director: Todd Graff
Stars: Queen Latifah, Dolly Parton, Keke Palmer
●●●

You'd have to be pretty hard hearted not to get a charge out of the outsized enthusiasm of Joyful Noise.

OK, the script is overloaded; it's unashamedly cornpone and "squeaky clean" is an understatement. It concerns a local church choir in a vaguely unsettlingly small Georgia town where everyone knows your business.

And sadly, Dolly Parton may have passed the surgical tipping point.

However, the third act gospel competition is a glorious bolt of musical lightning that all but obliterates these niggling problems.

Red Light Revolution
Genre: Comedy/Foreign
Director: Sam Voutas
Stars: Jun Zhao, Vivid Wang, Xiduo Jiang
●●●

In this lighthearted Chinese comedy, a hapless entrepreneur has a streak of bad luck until he opens a sex toy shop in a conservative neighbourhood and discovers the repressed patrons are more willing to shell out for his adult wares than he initially anticipates. While the subtitled film may attract art-house moviegoers, the laughs are fairly broad and the characters benign enough for a Sunday afternoon audience as Australian-born filmmaker Sam Voutas lends the Beijing comedy a keen Western sensibility.

Pariah
Genre: Drama
Director: Dee Rees
Stars: Adepero Oduye, Kim Wayans, Aasha Davis
●●●●

From first time director Dee Rees and executive producer Spike Lee comes Pariah, a Sundance hit unfairly dismissed by some critics as Precious Lite. Both movies are set in inner city African American communities, and both feature a central character fighting to find her place, but there the similarities end. Pariah is the story of Alike (Adepero Oduye), a 17-year-old struggling to assert her sexuality to her god-fearing mother and family. It's a simple but vibrant movie, buoyed by authentic, heartfelt performances — particularly from Oduye, Kim Wayans as the mother and streetwise friend Sahra Mellesse — and, unlike Precious, blessed with an uplifting ending. ● RICHARD CROUSE

The Swell Season
Genre: Documentary
Directors: Nick August-Perna, Chris Dapkins, Carlo Mirabella-Davis
Stars: Glen Hansard, Marketa Irglova
●●½

The triumphant Oscar acceptance speech that introduced the world to Falling Slowly songwriters Glen Hansard and Marketa Irglova is not the climax of The Swell Season but rather a beginning: this ragged black-and-white documentary examines what happened after the unexpected breakthrough of the 2008 indie musical-romance Once.

Lifelong friends and former lovers despite their near-30-year age disparity, Hansard and Irglova cling together and drift apart during a concert tour capitalizing on Once's success; the film is intimately observed but suffers from an absence of compelling drama.

The subjects are ultimately just too nice.

Heartburn Reflux

The USDA now recommends to eat 50% alkaline food (vegetables, legumes, salads, fruit). Health professionals suggest 80% alkaline food. Unfortunately, North American people eat 95% acidic food (meat, noodles, rice, bread, pastries, sweets, junk food). If you cannot change your diet to USDA's 50% or closer to 80% alkaline food, consider to supplement with a natural health product that helps to increase your pH alkaline level close to a healthy 7. Ask for Bell Acidic Stomach/Alkaline Balance #39. It's inexpensive, has no side effects and may eliminate the need for anti-acid pills many people take. As a bonus, an alkaline balanced body prevents many illnesses. See guarantee printed on box. ■ Reflux gave me a sore throat and I could not sing in the church choir anymore. After taking Bell #39 I have no more reflux and rejoice in singing again. Helene Giroux, 65, Quebec, QC ■ Have family history of heartburn. For last 10 years I suffered a lot with acid reflux. I told all family members about #39 being all natural, giving quick relief and having no side effects. Michael Fasheh, 49, Port Ranch, CA ■ Very happy with acid reflux relief. Last 4 years had increasing reflux despite taking anti-acid products. I am also trying to eat more alkaline food. Grzegorz Smirnow, 43, Mt. Prospect, IL ■ Suffered with reflux, choking and coughing. After starting Bell #39 I feel great. Amazed about the complete relief. Thanks from the bottom of my heart. Katarina Tusa, 63, North York, ON ■ Was sleeping sitting up to avoid reflux. I thought I had this health problem for life like my other family members. Bell #39 brought quick relief. Can sleep now normally, have more energy, feel great. Bell products are quite different. Virginia Grant, 67, Markham, ON No need to make claims. Bell relays 100% truthful user's free speech. No money is paid for it. No questions asked guarantee.

Golden Globe nominees say they're ready, even eager, for the comic wrath of host Ricky Gervais

When Golden Globes host Ricky Gervais took sharp swipes at Mel Gibson, Bruce Willis, Robert Downey, Jr. and the Hollywood Foreign Press Association at last year's ceremony, some criticized the comedian for going too far.

Downey described the vibe as "hugely mean-spirited, with mildly sinister undertones."

With Gervais back for his third turn as Globes host on Sunday, nominees are already preparing themselves for the British funnyman's pointed jabs.

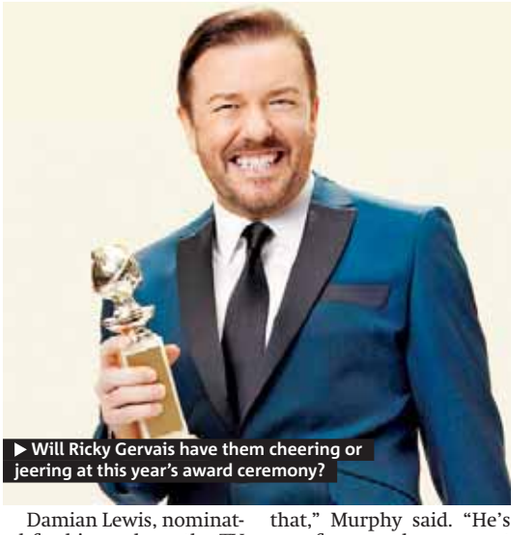
"I'll probably get the piss taken out of me, but it's fine with me," said Elton John, nominated for his song from Gnomeo & Juliet. "I'm British. I can take it."

Johnny Galecki, who is up for his first Golden Globe for his work on TV's The Big Bang Theory, said that when he got word he was nominated, "one of my first five thoughts was, 'Oh Christ, Gervais is going to make fun of me.'"

But the actor isn't really worried.

"I'll be flattered by it," said the 5-foot 5-inch Galecki. "I'm looking forward to it. I hope he doesn't just zero in on the height. That's just easy pickings."

HANDOUT



▶ Will Ricky Gervais have them cheering or jeering at this year's award ceremony?

CTV airs the Golden Globes red carpet arrivals on Sunday at 7 p.m. ET on CTV Two. ETALK will have all its red carpet coverage on Monday at 7 p.m. ET on CTV.

Damian Lewis, nominated for his work on the TV series Homeland, said he might also be an easy target for Gervais.

"If he's got a thing about redheads, I'm a sitting duck," Lewis said.

Glee and American Horror Story executive producer Ryan Murphy is excited about Gervais' return and the spice he brings to the three-hour telecast.

"It's always good with the shows to have an unpredictable element to them, and he certainly is that," Murphy said. "He's very funny and very smart and I think he will make nominees even more nervous than they already are, which is kind of funny."

Seth Rogen, who produced and starred in best picture nominee 50/50, is also looking forward to Gervais' return. He even went online to check out what the comedian said last year.

"It was the first time in a long time I'd gone on YouTube and watched something an awards show said," Rogen said.

Supporting actor nominee Christopher Plummer said he appreciates Gervais' irreverence.

"I think finally everybody's come to that same conclusion: That that's him, he doesn't mean it, but he's very funny," Plummer said.

Jean Dujardin, nominated for his starring role in the silent film The Artist (which is also up for best picture and is the night's leading nominee with six bids), said it would be an honour if Gervais even mentioned him.

But there's a caveat, the actor said: "If he mocks me, he has to do it silently, without any words."

The 69th annual Golden Globe Awards will be presented Sunday at the Beverly Hilton Hotel and broadcast live on NBC.

Ben's big 3

Ben Mulroney's three favourite Golden Globes red carpet moments.

1 "At a certain point during the red carpets, you're told to stop doing interviews so they can get everyone inside for the show. Last year, as we were wrapping up, Vancouver-raised Cory Monteith spotted our ETALK logo and ran over to chat with us anyway. A publicist spotted us, and kept trying to shut the interview down until Cory asked her to please calm down and let him talk. He broke the rules because he didn't want to miss the opportunity to say hi to Canada."

2 "I'd always wanted to talk to Emma Stone, and last year I got my chance. She came on the carpet with her platinum blonde hair because for her Spider-Man role, and was absolutely stunning. It was refreshing to talk to someone whose star was rising, but was still so down to earth. She was fun, confident, well-spoken and didn't take herself too seriously. Through her movies, you feel like you get a sense of who she is, and you do – there's no pretence with her. You definitely won't see Emma pulling a Lindsay Lohan."

3 "ETALK is lucky to have a platform position at the Golden Globes, so we're able to talk to a whole cast if the opportunity arises, and last year it did. The entire cast of The Walking Dead came onto our platform and I literally dropped to my knees and bowed to their greatness. The show is built for TV and movie fans, with an amazing cast. They're all great stars who may not be at the Oscars, but their level of accomplishment is on par with anyone nominated for an Academy Award. I was honoured to have the chance to talk to them."

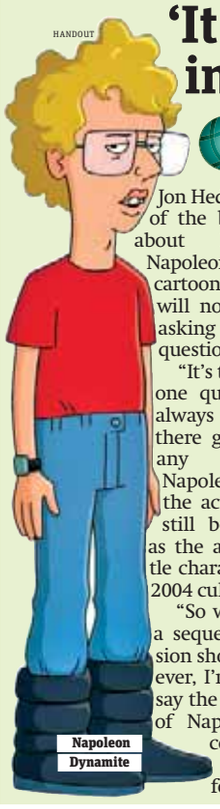
'It was a way we could get inside Napoleon's head'

HANDOUT



IAN JOHNSTON
@METRONEWS.CA

Jon Heder says one of the best things about his new Napoleon Dynamite cartoon is that fans will no longer be asking him "that" question.

"It's the number one question you always get — is there going to be any more Napoleon?" says the actor, who is still best known as the awkward title character in the 2004 cult hit.

"So whether it's a sequel or television show or whatever, I'm happy to say the adventures of Napoleon will continue."

Also back for the animated series — which will join The Simpsons and Family Guy on Fox's Sunday night lineup — is the film's director/writer Jared Hess and all the original cast members. Add to that executive producer Mike Scully (The Simpsons), and the future looks bright for the curly-haired nerd.

"We always felt if we ever continued the adventures of Napoleon, that we would do it in animated form," says Hess.

"It was a way we could get inside Napoleon's head…to kind of do things you can't do in live action. One of the great things about animation is that it costs just as much to draw a space ship as a car."

The cartoon marks the first time the cast has been back together since the film's release.

"It's been a lot of fun," says Hess. "Because most of us hadn't seen each other since it played at Sundance when we first screened it. It was kind of a fun, little reunion to get everyone back together for the table read…"

Less enjoyable for Heder has been the increased acting workload.

"It was a very relaxing film to do because…you can hide behind your eyelids and rest your voice," he laughs. "But for the lead character in an ongoing animated series, I've had to show way more emotional range than I've ever had in anything else."

Mourning Maury

Cast of Less Than Kind come together after sudden death of actor Maury Chaykin ◐ Filming now therapeutic

HANDOUT

▶ Less Than Kind returns for a third season Sunday on HBO Canada.

STEVE GOW
@METRONEWS.CA

Overcoming the loss of your lead actor can be detrimental to a television series.

For Less than Kind — who suddenly lost the prolific, irreplaceable Maury Chaykin in July — demise surely seemed imminent.

"We thought about (calling it quits) but I think we just absorbed the shock of it," said head writer/producer Mark McKinney, perhaps better known as one-fifth of the legendary Kids in the Hall comedy troupe.

"We realized we had created this great show about a completely authentic family and this was a really sad but completely authentic experience that people could relate to so (continuing) seemed like an obvious thing."

Despite the difficult decision to persevere with a third season (which premieres this Sunday on HBO Canada), the experience of finding a way around a set that didn't include Chaykin's magnificent personality was an adjustment.

In an act of art imitating life in the new season, the fictional Blecher family will find catharsis grieving for their patriarch just as the real-life close-knit cast and crew had to.

"Sam Blecher dies early in the series and like it happens in families, this rearranges and changes relationships," explained McKinney.

"Then people work their way back; so we send the characters quite far out of their normal orbit and then sort of pull them back but I hope in a realistic way. And it's funny too considering what we were dealing with."

But turning out new episodes wasn't just steely resolve for the show. For those close to Chaykin, filming became an exercise in therapy — that especially rang true for McKinney.

"Maury died five days before my mom did so it was really a hell of a summer. But my own family, we grew a factor closer by going through that together and so did this cast so in that sense it was all good in a way."

'So grateful'

Less Than Kind won three Gemini Awards while the cast still mourned Chaykin's death.

- "Winning the Geminis was amazing but we were all together a week before that for our first read-through (of Season 3) and that is the thing that is special to me," said McKinney. "We were so grateful to be back together and to be able to process all this."

Gifted actor

Maury Chaykin accumulated more than 120 film/TV credits in over 35 years. Here's an abbreviated filmography of the actor:

- Less Than Kind (2008-2010)
- HBO's Entourage (2005 – 2007)
- Nero Wolfe (2001 – 2002)
- Mystery, Alaska (1999)
- The Sweet Hereafter (1997)
- My Cousin Vinny (1992)
- Dances With Wolves (1990) ● STEVE GOW

Katey Sagal's music career gets a boost from hit show's soundtrack

Somebody get Katey Sagal a record deal — no really.

Although she's happy with her day job on the successful F/X series Sons of Anarchy, in her heart, she's a singer — and she gets a chance to show it as part of a new collection of songs from the show's first four seasons.

"I love being an actor, but there's something about playing music that's a gift," the 57-year-old Sagal admits.

In the past, Sagal recorded on Elektra and Casablanca Records. But times have changed in the music business for her, and she paid to record her last album. Sagal yearns to record again in a more traditional manner.

MUSIC PREDICTIONS FOR 2012

SOUND CHECK

ALAN CROSS
SCENE
@METRONEWS.CA

Here are some predictions for music in 2012.

Indie music's impact will be greater than ever. Major labels — we'll soon be down to just three — will continue to chase mass audiences with mass appeal artists. Their focus will be more on creating Top 40 superstars. It'll be up to the indies to deliver the truly interesting stuff. And they will.

In addition to mass appeal acts, the major labels will really push heritage performers. This year's big reunions so far are the Cranberries (new album on Feb. 14), the Stone Roses (festivals this summer) and Black Sabbath (new album this fall). Also expect more deluxe reissues (Tragically Hip, I'm looking at you) as they try to persuade us to buy new copies of old albums — at a premium, of course.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Madonna is hoping her new album will go to number one on the charts.

Madonna and the Rolling Stones will battle it out for the tour of the year. Madonna will release her new album in March. And, although they're playing coy, there's no way the Rolling Stones won't go on a 50th anniversary tour this year.

The gap between what's on the radio and what the kids are listening to online will continue to widen. Ask anyone under 24 about Lana Del Ray and they'll know instantly who you're talking about. Even though she's barely made any kind of dent in commercial radio, her indie appeal is enough for her to be the musical guest on Saturday Night Live.

This is the year streaming music services will really take off. Rdio and Slacker are already in Canada. Spotify is coming.

CDs will still be around in twelve months. Ignore all those stupid predictions that the labels will boot the compact disc this year.

There will be another glut of Christmas albums in 11 months. For the past couple of years, Christmas albums have saved the music industry's fourth quarter. The trend will repeat in 2012. ALAN IS THE HOST OF THE RADIO SHOW THE SECRET HISTORY OF ROCK. REACH HIM AT ALAN@ALANCROSS.CA

Love don't cost a thing, just $40,000 a month

▶ Even if you were broke, her love won't cost a thing. In fact, she'll even pay you to love her.

THE WORD

DOROTHY ROBINSON
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

It pays to be Jennifer Lopez's boy toy.

Star magazine reports that Lopez is paying her former back-up dancer Casper Smart $10,000 a week so he can pretend like he has the funds to date her high-profile self (it's like crazy Britney Spears all over again).

A source tells the mag, "She hated having to whip out her credit card every time they go to dinner. Jen figured it's easier to give Casper a weekly stipend, and she thought $10,000 was a nice round number. Jen doesn't want to go over the top, showering Casper with too much, but she also wants him to up his game. Jen is hoping Casper won't think twice about buying presents for her kids or whisking her off for a surprise weekend getaway."

Ha. No. $40,000 a month as payment to be your boyfriend isn't "over the top" at all!

That's totally normal and sane behaviour! From the block, indeed. No wonder she's shilling so hard for Fiat — she has a boyfriend to support.

Katy Perry is still wanted

Her marriage to Russell Brand may be over, but at least Katy Perry has her fans to turn to.

The singer won big at the People's Choice Awards this week, pulling in five awards: favourite female artist, tour headliner and for song of the year for ET with Kanye West, music video for Last Friday Night and TV guest star for How I Met Your Mother, according to People magazine.

There was a significant lack of acceptance speeches at the awards show, though, as Perry decided earlier in the week not to attend the ceremony.

Berry still bursting

Halle Berry is reportedly eager to expand her family with fiancé Olivier Martinez, according to Star magazine.

"Halle is very serious about this marriage," a source says. "She's ready."

Another source adds, "Olivier has become her rock. Halle would love to have more kids, but she knows it might be difficult because of her age and the fact that she's diabetic."

Cougar Town confuses Cox's child

I SAW MOMMY KISSING ... Courteney Cox says her on-screen romance with Cougar Town co-star Josh Hopkins has led to some confusing moments at home with her 7-year-old daughter, Coco, since Hopkins is also a close family friend.

"She shouldn't watch Cougar Town, but she does," Cox tells Us Weekly about her daughter. "She's always like, 'Mommy! Did you really kiss Josh?' And I'm like, 'I'm just faking it!'" Cox and Hopkins have been rumored to be dating in real life as well but have both denied reports of a relationship.

Wine sipping on a budget

A New Year brings many things. None of which are more thrilling than those post-holiday bills dropped off by your friendly postman.

While coming to grips with how much you spent making your Christmas merry may be enough to drive you to drink, finding a bottle of something decent you can pay for with the change found between your couch cushions may seem unlikely.

Though larger format sizes offer good value, many are blended, non-vintage wines with European sounding names and lackluster taste. That makes a drinkable, inexpensive vintage wine in a 1,500 millilitre bottle one of the Holy Grails of the booze business.

Low labour costs and a predictable climate make those from Chile consistent and quaffable. The 2010 Frontera Cabernet Sauvignon Merlot (1,500 ml, $14.95 - $20.49) — made by mega producer Concha y Toro — is a light mix of bright acidity, super soft tannins and fresh berry flavours.

Try this red with tomato-based pasta sauces and grilled meats. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS CANADA. SOME PRODUCTS MAY NOT BE AVAILABLE IN ALL PROVINCES.

Back with a vengeance

Kessel returns to all-star game but his 48 points make him unlikely to be picked last again

CLAUS ANDERSEN/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Phil Kessel has been selected for this year's all-star game.

Phil Kessel is heading back to the NHL all-star game and it's hard to imagine he'll have to wait until the end of the draft before hearing his name called this time.

The Toronto Maple Leafs forward was among the final 36 players added to the event by the league's hockey operations department Thursday, joining Maple Leafs teammates Joffrey Lupul and Dion Phaneuf for the Jan. 29 game at Scotiabank Place.

Kessel's participation in last year's all-star weekend is best remembered for him becoming the last selection in the inaugural draft — a somewhat embarrassing moment that included Capitals star Alex Ovechkin chuckling and snapping a photo of Kessel sitting alone waiting to be picked.

"Hopefully he's not selected last two years in a row," Lupul said Thursday. "But he got a car for it, so I mean it's not all bad, right?"

Besides, no one is laughing now.

Kessel has been among the league's most prolific players all season and entered play Thursday sitting second overall in scoring with 48 points, two behind Vancouver Canucks forward Henrik Sedin, another newly minted all-star.

In fact, the top nine scorers so far will all be in attendance, a list that includes Philadelphia's Claude Giroux, Tampa Bay's Steven Stamkos, Vancouver's Daniel Sedin, Chicago's Marian Hossa, Pittsburgh's Evgeni Malkin and Ottawa's Jason Spezza, along with Henrik Sedin, Kessel and Lupul.

The other attendees include names like Ovechkin, Jonathan Toews, Corey Perry, Zdeno Chara, Pavel Datsyuk and Henrik Lundqvist — making it a who's-who gathering of NHL players.

"I think it means a lot (to be there)," said Henrik Sedin. "It's one of those things I think you're going to look back at when you're done playing (and feel proud) that you've been to one or a few of those. That's something you can tell your grandkids."

The draft format will remain for this year's event but is expected to include a few changes — with one source indicating a defenceman could be left until the end. As the last man standing a year ago, Kessel received $20,000 US for charity and a Honda CR-Z hybrid.

"I've still got it," he said Thursday.

A similar bounty is expected to soften the blow for the final player selected at the all-star draft in Ottawa.

The NHL Players' Association worked in close consultation with league executive Rob Blake on the organization of the event and players were overwhelmingly in favour of keeping a last man standing.

The captains and assistants in charge of selecting the all-star teams will be announced next week. One of them is expected to be Ottawa Senators captain Daniel Alfredsson, who fans previously voted into the game along with teammates Erik Karlsson, Milan Michalek and Spezza.

The Senators are the best represented team. The Canucks, Leafs, Bruins, Rangers and Blackhawks all have three players participating in the all-star game.

The Sedin twins are joined by Canucks teammate Alexander Edler while Calgary will be represented by Jarome Iginla, another potential choice to captain one of the all-star teams. Montreal Canadiens goalie Carey Price and Winnipeg Jets defenceman Dustin Byfuglien will also participate.

What's behind Bargnani's breakthrough?

The big wonder is how Andrea Bargnani has been able to do so much so far in this NBA season while running around the court with that lightbulb finally shining over his head.

Yes, after six seasons of little more than maddening inconsistency — flashes of excellence followed long stretches of infuriating lethargy — Bargnani seems to finally get it.

He is engaged at both ends of the floor, he rebounds in traffic, he is animated and excellent and one of the premier scorers in the entire league.

"Andrea for me, and I've been telling all my coaching friends around the league, is playing like an all-star on both ends of the floor," is the oft-stated belief of Raptors coach Dwane Casey and when Casey says that, eyebrows aren't necessarily raised in disbelief.

But why now?

Why, in his sixth season, is the seven-foot Roman finally showing the consistent determination and varied skills that led Raptors president and general manager Bryan Colangelo to make him the first-overall pick in the 2006 draft, the first time a European-born player had achieved such exalted status?

"I think he's getting the respect of league now. I don't know if last year he had it, but I think he's getting it."
RAPTORS COACH DWANE CASEY

Talk to coaches, teammates and close observers of the team and it comes down to two salient points.

He's finally been challenged to perform on the defensive end or risk being made an afterthought — "true accountability" is the phrase most commonly heard — and Bargnani is simply a very good basketball player who took longer than some had expected to understand the nuances of the game.

"He's matured, he knows this is his team, he's one of the stars of our team ... he's growing up," says his coach. "You're watching a guy grow up from a young player into a man and I think his confidence and his game is going higher and higher."

A strained calf has put a crimp into Bargnani's blistering start to the reduced NBA season. He left Wednesday's loss to the Sacramento Kings in the second half and his availability for Friday's home game against Indiana is in doubt. Officially, he's listed as day-to-day but with the Raptors in recent years, day-to-day is a catch-all for everything from major surgery to a cold.

The Maple Leafs (22-15-5) head to Buffalo (18-19-5) after shutting out the Sabres 2-0 in Toronto on Tuesday. Buffalo has scored 11 goals in its last seven games. Thomas Vanek and Derek Roy (upper-body) both missed Tuesday's game and are day-to-day. Drew Stafford had six shots on Tuesday, but failed to score. Stafford has one goal in his last 11 games. Ville Leino, with only 10 points on the season, has been held off the scoresheet in two games since returning from a lower-body injury.

Young 49ers 'really hungry'

But most key San Francisco players untested ahead of matchup with battle-hardened Saints

CHRISTIAN PETERSEN/GETTY IMAGES FILE

"So much of the playoffs is the hot team and the team that's peaking and continuing to get better here at the end of the season. That's really our focus, is just to continue to get better."
49ERS QUARTERBACK ALEX SMITH

Centre Jonathan Goodwin has been going around San Francisco's locker-room offering bits of veteran insight here and there. Playoff knowledge, New Orleans Saints knowledge.

The NFC West champion 49ers have eight players who have been to the post-season previously. The Saints? A whopping 39 before their victory over Detroit last weekend.

"I think some of the guys who didn't get a chance to go to the playoffs in the past, they're hungry," 49ers tight end Vernon Davis said. "They're really hungry. I don't know what it's going to be like, I just know I'm playing in the playoffs."

That's where Goodwin comes in.

Among the key off-season acquisitions for San Francisco, Goodwin is one of those playoff-tested guys (13-3). He won a Super Bowl ring with the Saints two years ago.

"Should be pretty fun," Goodwin said. "Hopefully my experiences seeing that defence a lot during training camp and sometimes during the season will be valuable."

When the 49ers suit up Saturday afternoon against Drew Brees and the high-powered Saints (14-3), quarterback and 2005 No. 1 draft pick Alex Smith will be just one of many San Francisco regulars making playoff debuts on the NFL's big stage.

Of the 49ers who have been to the post-season before, only long snapper Brian Jennings remains from the 49ers' 2002 season when they rallied past the New York Giants 39-38 in their NFC wild-card game.

What a difference from the Saints, with almost a full roster of men who have played such big games before this year. The 49ers are considered an underdog despite playing at home in sold-out Candlestick Park.

San Francisco earned the NFC's No. 2 seed over the Saints, who did their share of scoreboard watching late in the season in hopes of stealing the second spot and a first-round bye.

Brees will be up against a stingy San Francisco defence that allowed only three rushing touchdowns and all in the final two games — and the Niners had 38 takeaways to only 10 turnovers for a plus-28 turnover differential. That matched the second-best mark in NFL history.

Now the 49ers face the daunting task of trying to slow a Saints offence that produced a playoff-record 626 yards in last week's 45-28 win over the Lions. Brees threw for 466 yards and completed 33 of 43 passes — and no doubt will provide the toughest test yet for San Francisco's talented defence. The 49ers have lost the last six meetings with New Orleans.

But Brees knows playoff experience won't mean much.

"To be honest with you, each team is different," Brees said. "I would say San Francisco is a 13-win team just like we're a 13-win team and we've all played in a lot of big games this year and we've all had to win down the stretch."

▶ Cornerback Champ Bailey of the Broncos, right, intercepts a pass in front of wide receiver Troy Brown of the Patriots in the last post-season meeting between the two teams in January 2006.

Bailey vs. Brady six years later

Broncos looking to upset Patriots in playoffs again

The last time the Broncos and New England Patriots met in the playoffs, Champ Bailey returned an interception 100 yards, sparking a big Denver win and handing Tom Brady his first post-season defeat after 10 wins and three titles.

Six years later, they meet again on Saturday, both men longer in the tooth but just as transcendent.

At age 33, Bailey has helped the Broncos (9-8) reach the playoffs for the first time in six seasons.

"He's really a playmaker for them," Brady said. "He's a great leader. He's everything you look for in a football player."

That's pretty much what Bailey said about Brady.

7th

Champ Bailey and the Broncos will be out for their seventh win in 10 tries against Tom Brady. No other team has had that much success against the two-time MVP.

"He's smart, accurate, he has all the tools," Bailey said. "He's tough, confident. Everything you want in a player."

At age 34, Brady threw 39 touchdown passes, the second-best total of his great career, and led the Pats (13-3) to the top of the AFC by winning his last eight starts, including a blowout at Denver on Dec. 18.

The heavily favoured Patriots are 8-2 in home playoff games under Brady, whose 14-5 post-season record is tied with Terry Bradshaw for the best mark in league history.

The Broncos captain readily acknowledges he doesn't particularly enjoy facing Brady.

"It's more frustrating when you're out there because he's so good. He's one of the best ever," Bailey said. "I think a lot of people want to find out who's going to be the next guy, but he always reminds everybody he's still the best."

Silva's MLS education underway

Reds select All-American mid-fielder in SuperDraft ◗ 'I bring a little bit of everything to the team,' says Silva

JAMIE SQUIRE/GETTY IMAGES

▶ TFC pick Luis Silva at the MLS SuperDraft in Kansas City, Mo., on Thursday.

Had pledge.

Though the offensively-gifted mid-fielder has designs on a professional soccer career, he's also just two courses shy of his college degree.

"I'm going to finish school eventually," the 23-year-old from Los Angeles said after Toronto FC took him fourth overall Thursday in the MLS SuperDraft.

"I promised my mom I would," said the five-foot-11, 163-pounder.

But with training camp less than two weeks away and expectations from TFC that he will get minutes on the first team as a rookie, Silva will need to talk to his professors at the University of California Santa Barbara about completing his Spanish major with an education minor online.

As a senior last season, Silva had 17 goals and 10 assists in 24 games for UCSB, which lost in the third round of the NCAA playdowns. He became the school's first soccer player selected as a first-team All-American.

"I'm just ready for wherever the coach wants to play me," Silva said from the draft in Kansas City.

The Reds used their other pick, which was acquired in the deal that sent Dwayne De Rosario to the New York Red Bulls, to take Aaron Maund, a defender out of the University of Notre Dame, 12th overall.

"Both players were on our list and we were very happy to get them," Aron Winter, TFC's head coach and technical director, said.

Winter had said prior to the draft that the Reds would take the best players available rather than target a particular position. But with Silva able to play an attacking mid-field or wing position and Maund best suited to the left side of central defence, it's clear both have a chance to crack the lineup in 2012.

"Even with his size, he's very flexible," Winter said of the 21-year-old Maund, a six-foot-one, 185-pound native of Dorchester, Mass. "Also, on his feet, he's very good and in this league ... that can make the difference."

TFC opens training camp in Toronto on Jan. 23. The club's first two matches — March 7 at Rogers Centre and a week later in California — are against the MLS Cup champion L.A. Galaxy in the quarter-finals of CONCACAF Champions League. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Baseball owners stick with Bud

Commissioner Selig's contract extended through the 2014 season • He has held top baseball job since 1992

Baseball commissioner Bud Selig says he couldn't resist the pleas of team owners for him to stay on the job. His wife Sue has said all along there was no way her husband would walk away from the game.

In the end, she was right.

Owners voted 29-1 on Thursday to give Selig a two-year contract extension through the 2014 season.

Selig has held the position since 1992, first as interim commissioner and then as commissioner since 1998. He will turn 80 in July 2014.

If he stays until September 2016, he would surpass Kenesaw Mountain Landis (1920-44) as the longest-serving baseball commissioner.

"I've often said, and I believe this, for me personally in my life there's no higher honour than being the commissioner of baseball," Selig said.

Selig's contract had been due to expire this Dec. 31 and he had talked of doing some teaching after leaving the job. But he said he began hearing lately from owners who wanted him to stay on.

"I started hearing a couple of weeks ago that there was a groundswell movement to do this," he said. "'You can't leave now.' I'd hear from various owners."

He said he reached the decision after thinking about it over the holidays, although he acknowledged his wife had been right when she said all along that he wouldn't be stepping down this year.
